Russia's main gas pipeline to Europe stops supplies

Bids remained for supplies in both directions

Westbound gas flows from Russia to Germany via the Yamal-Europe pipeline stopped on Thursday, while bids remained for supplies in both directions, according to data tracked by the pipeline operator Gascade.

According to the operator, westbound gas supplies had been mostly at about 17.5 million kWh/h at Mallnow metering point for some 10 hours before the stoppage.

The data also showed preliminary bids of 6.4 million kWh/h for the next 24 hours for westbound supplies, with bids for eastbound flows of 6.1 million kWh/h.

Gazprom said on Thursday it was shipping gas to Europe via Ukraine in line with customers' requests.

reverse – eastbound – mode as buyers in Poland drew on stored supplies from Germany rather than buying more Russian gas at the spot market where the prices recorded all-time highs nearly every day. Western media at the time accused Russia's Gazprom of deliberately cutting European supplies.

The Russian state-controlled energy giant has intermittently sent gas westward via the link in recent days amid high demand in Europe. The company has also increased supplies to the continent via Ukraine.

Russia covers nearly 40% of European gas demand with the Yamal-Europe route accounting for nearly 15% of the country's westbound supply.

The one and only solution to stop the war: Ukraine signs a NoNato deal. Lpr and Dpr becomes sovereign states. If Ukraine does not accept these terms war will continue until Ukraine has to give up and sign - there is no other way.

Like I said before, a war of attrition. Intended steam-over for the next 8-10 years or more. If negotiations in all channels are unsuccessful, there might be direct confrontations between Russia & NATO troops which is the worst-case scenario. The first order of prevention is to mutually agree to a No-Fly-Zone on Ukraine. Although this might seem to pave the way to troop skirmishes, this Zone is to prevent accidental atomic bombardment or chemical/biological weapons. Once this zone is enforced by both sides, the other details of negotiation can be agreed-upon.

What a bloody mess. Let's hope the puppet regime in Kiev gets kicked out and a sensible administration can restore good relations with its neighbours instead of being a tool for the American mafia in Washington.

Here, I'm going to explain what is happening with comments: Disqus (former comment system) discontinued service to RT due to pressure from "the West". And in it's place they contracted a terrible Russia-based comment platform that has a bot that auto-deletes almost every comment as soon as they are posted. To circumvent this, people are writing the text on lingojam.com/ FancyTextGenerator , and copying the comment in special characters, that way the comment is not readable by the bot and does not get deleted.

Germany was stupid to depend on Russia. Depending on any other state is stupid. You can say what you want about Hitler, but Hitler's Germany would never have depended on other states for essentials.
